Farewell to D-West Class of 2010

By Malia Sisk
DWHS Senior Class President

The Doniphan West Class of 2010 is a class of strength, hard work, and motivation. We will be one of the largest classes to graduate from Doniphan West, and one of the strongest.

"I feel like I got to know more people and connect with them better because our class was so large," said senior Lindsay Libel. "This makes leaving so much harder."

Our fellow classmates possess many talents that will bring them success in the future. We have been through a lot together as a class. From the time we entered high school as freshmen, time has flown by. The desires, ambitions, and goals our classmates possess are endless. Some classmates are entering college with major goals, while others have their own plans all lined up.

"I plan to major in radiology and will get my associates degree at the Highland Community College my first year, and then I will attend Washburn and get a degree in Science," senior Amanda Pickman said.

We have been through so much together as a class, both the good times and the bad. Our class has worked hard throughout our high school years and has accomplished great things.

"Our class is very involved in a wide variety of activities like music and sports," said senior Mollie Tharp.

"I would describe our class as eccentric because there is a lot of different personalities but we mesh well together," said senior Savannah Stevens.

We won the float competition for the homecoming parade our junior year, and have worked hard to raise money for our senior trip to Galveston, Texas.

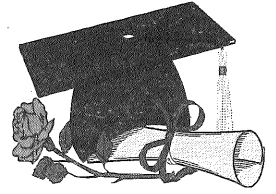

"It was a great accomplishment to win the float competition and we got to hang out as a class," said senior Cameron Twombly.

The Doniphan West Class of 2010 will always be remembered for not only being a large class but for adding great tradition to the Doniphan West High School. The door will soon be open to the Doniphan West seniors where opportunities are endless. Good luck seniors!

Future looks bright of THS Grads

by Daniel Dominguez, THS President, 2010 graduating class

"The Class of 2010 RULES!" I remember making this sign for eighth grade graduation and here we are again, getting ready for another graduation and moving on to the next chapter of our lives.

I can now look back on our eighth grade year and think of how far we had come and how grown up we tried to be. We didn't cry; I don't remember any blubbing. We smiled big, proud smiles for our family and friends as they took hundreds of pictures of our big day. We were all so relieved to be moving on from the awkward phases of middle school and into the "adult" world of high school.

This year we started with the same attitude, "It's finally over!" But the days have quickly gone by; our countdowns count down with increasing speed, from 127 days to 47 days and finally to one day.

We've started keeping track of our lasts, like our last Friday and our last Monday. With the start of our senior trip we've all realized that high school is over; this is it. No more early morning bus rides, no more movies in Mrs. Rockey's room, and no more noisy school lunches. Our four years at Troy High School are over and as ready as we are to move on, a part of us is sad, abandoned. We're leaving that part of ourselves at THS and it will stay for as long as we fondly reflect on all of our joyous, mundane, embarrassing moments of high school.

My classmate, Aaron Shelton, tells the story of how Jesse Masters, Randall Baskins, Ross Libel, and he spent the night in Jesse Masters' tree house (their frequent grade school hangout) freshman year to try to recapture their youth. Youth, to them, long gone and lost to the responsibility-ridden days of high school. Little did they know how much more responsibility we would receive. In middle school, we could taste these responsibilities—but not touch. So we rebelled and tried to take power before we, or our parents, were ready. I find myself more willing to revert back to letting my parents decide. I know things are changing; they'll never be quite the same.

We owe our families and our loved ones so much. I can't begin to describe how thankful and blessed I feel to have parents who love me and care about what I do. The class of 2010 thanks everyone who has been with us when times were good and especially thanks those who have stuck by our sides when times were bad. To those of you who were examples to live by: friends, educators, church leaders, coworkers, and community members, thank you. And to the few of you who were examples of what not to do, we thank you too.

Perhaps we have influenced each other the most though. Without one of us we are not a class. We all bring to each other something that we can't easily find in ourselves. We've given each other the opportunity to grow and to love each other, learning that being perfect and being ourselves are two different things.

Brittany Clary's (at times boisterous) voice perfectly balances Heather Adkins' quiet demeanor. Hannah "Helen Keller" Simpson's enthusiasm coupled with Kia Grable's and Hana Speaks' chatter creates the familiar chorus of giggles heard in their classes together. Jacob Clary's ability to update everyone on almost any subject, Gerald Clary's monkey calls, Colby Miller's Stitch voice, Jared Meng's dry humor, and Ashley Miller's creativity are all aspects of my classmates that I have come to know and love. I can't capture every feeling each person in my class gives me, but I know that a day, a week, or even 10 years after graduation I will be able to look back on all the years I have spent with my friends and smile.

I would like to take some time to mention some of the accomplishments of my class. Throughout high school, we have been active in almost every activity at THS. I truly believe that the students following us at Troy High School will have big shoes to fill next year. I can only hope that we have been examples to them of how to be strong leaders and even stronger followers. Hannah Simpson started as a freshman on the varsity volleyball team, and as sophomores, we have had players starting on varsity football and basketball. When our classmates have been a part of the football team, they have made it to the state playoffs all four years.

Our girls hold the basketball record for the most forced turnovers in a game and the most steals in a game. In track, our class has gone to state every year and holds numerous records. These include the 400, 800, 4x1, 4x4, 4x8, mile, long jump, and triple jump. Hana Speaks medaled three years at state cross country and Hannah Simpson medaled two years.

We have had lead performers in both the all-school play and spring musical all four years. Students in our class consistently placed at art contests and speech festivals. We contributed to the journalism team that won state contest in the 1A division. I am extremely proud of my class and all of our accomplishments.

After graduation, Heather Adkins, Randall Baskins, Micah Bembrick, Brittany Clary, Emily Cluck, Kayla Hixson, Bradley

Laffin, Ross Libel, Kayla Martinez, Jared Meng, Ashley Miller, Colby Miller, Bailey Morgan, Leslie Ostertag, Joseph Pasch, Aaron Shelton, Kenneth Tharman, and Desiree Weatherford all received scholarships for various areas of study to attend Highland Community College. Hannah Simpson will be attending Washburn University, and Krystle O'Connor will attend B Street Academy of Cosmetology, both in Topeka, Kansas. Kia Grable will be attending the University of Dallas in Dallas, Texas; Hana Speaks will attend Dana College in Blair, Nebraska; Jesse Masters will pursue a trade at Tulsa Welding School in Tulsa, Oklahoma; David Jacob Clary will attend college at Missouri Western State University; and I will attend college at St. Edwards University in Austin, Texas. Gerald Clary and Cale Cluck will join the work force after graduation.

To the students who have graduated before us and have shaped us and have given us sound roads to follow, one can't ever be sure how far your influence will reach, but I know that the time you gave us and the experience you afforded us will always be greatly appreciated.

To the community that has supported us throughout our lives, and the place that we will proudly and undoubtedly call our hometown, first, we might have made it this far without you but our time here has been one that will be treasured. And second, look to these individuals in the coming years, for leadership, citizenship, faith, support, and love. I am confident that some day, in the near or far future, I will boast my relationships with these graduates and hold them in a special place in my life.

To Jessika Christopher, our classmate and guardian angel, thank you. At a young age you taught us how to deal with loss and showed how fragile life is. You were a constant reminder to us to be kind to those less fortunate than us, always smile, share, and love. I distinctly remember sitting on Tom Speaks' lap with his daughter, Hana, after your accident and praying for you and your family. Our class has never come together in quite the same way since. We also thank Udo Fourie, former classmate and lost friend, for illustrating how one life can touch so many people. Please stay with us and continue to help guide us; we wish this for all our lost loved ones.

Lastly, to my fellow graduates...friends, take the times we've shared, the memories made, and the lessons learned, and use them—for good. I know high school can be a difficult time for most, but remember that even though you may resent moments and people, they have helped you become who you are today. Love them. Remember them. Use them to greatly influence the people you will meet after high school. Touch their lives, profoundly and beneficially, in much the same way you have touched mine. Thank you.

Become the person you, your family, and God have intended for you to be. I love you all and wish you good luck.

Graduations are like stepping through

By WHS Senior Class President Morgan Hontz

I can't believe it's here; graduation is right around the corner. Thirteen years of our lives have gone by so fast. We have made so many memories from playing house together in kindergarten to dancing the night away at prom. It's sometimes scary to see time go by so fast but we can't forget who we are or where we came from. High School was just a stepping-stone in our lives and one that we will never forget. I came across a poem the other day titled "Graduations Are Like Stepping Through".

Graduations are like stepping through
A veil into another, larger room.
Behind, where we can never go again,
Are memories like a shipwreck full of gold.

Strange, the harmonies of pride and sadness,
The dawn and sunset of the new and old,
The bittersweet good-byes while looking forward
To things unseen beyond the ridge of time.

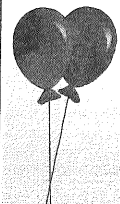

Numb with too much life we stagger through them,
Time passing in the ordinary way.
Relatives and friends all swarm around us,
Buzzing round the silence of the real.

And once the ceremonies and the parties are over,
And the sweet days come and go,
All we've lost comes back to us as music
Of love departed, never to return. -Unknown

This poem really made me think about the Graduating Class of WHS 2010. Class, don't be sad that it's over, be happy that it happened. Take all your memories from WHS and don't forget the friends you made. Live your life to the fullest and always look to God for strength to get you through the day. Congratulations WHS Class of 2010. Job Well Done, EHS Class of 2010

By Senior Class President Courtney Allen

The 2010 senior class of Elwood High School has definitely become much closer throughout the past four years. We've had our ups and we've certainly had our downs but we stuck together and worked it all out. We have shared so many memories together it would make it almost impossible to not be this close.

Speaking for my fellow classmates, we would all agree this has been one of the best years ever. With the support of our parents, our teachers and our friends we have made it to this day and to the beginning of a new stage in our lives.

We have a senior class of 16 and although there are a few of us who are still undecided, the majority will be going off to college in the fall. Six will be attending Highland Community College, three will be going to Missouri Western State University and Desmond Davis will be traveling the farthest away to McCloud College. There are two students who are planning on joining the Air Guard and another one who will also be joining the military. Now that we all have figured that out, our choices will begin to revolve around what job we want to be doing 20 years from now. As long as we put our hearts into it, I believe all of us will succeed in anything we set our minds to.

Our class has chosen royal blue and orange for our class colors. Our flower is the hibiscus and the song we chose to represent us is "Say Goodbye" by S-club 7. The class motto is, "The key to happiness is having dreams. The key to success is making them come true."

To the Class of 2010, I want to say congratulations. Always take with you the memories, the knowledge and the self-satisfaction of a job well done.

Moran to Address HCC's Graduates Friday, May 14

Plans have been finalized for the 2010 commencement exercises at Highland Community College. The 2010 commencement will again be held outdoors on Friday evening, May 14, at 7:00 pm on Kessinger Field on the HCC campus. Over 150 graduates are scheduled to hear the Honorable Jerry Moran, Kansas U.S. Congressman, who will be the guest speaker.

The HCC Commencement will be broadcast live by accessing the College's Web site at www.highlandcc.edu. There will be a rotating slide on the Homepage that will provide viewers with instructions.

Commencement exercises will begin with the traditional march across the campus of the HCC faculty and graduating students into the stadium, led by the Tullintrain Pipe Band bagpipe troupe. Those assembled will join in singing the HCC Alma Mater, followed by Moran's address. HCC President David Reist will induct the inaugural members of the HCC Academic Hall of Fame. After special music from the HCC music department, President Reist will announce special awards and present the class of 2010. Once the degrees have been conferred by Joyce C. Rush, chairperson of the HCC Board of Trustees, the Tullintrain Pipers will lead the graduates and faculty from the stadium.

A commencement meal starting at 5:00 pm will be available from Great Western Dining Services, served in the HCC Cafeteria with seating available on the front lawn. Great Western will also host a reception on the lawn following the commencement exercises. In the event of rain, the 2010 Commencement at HCC will be held in Allen Field House.
